Alpha-9 Calibration Handbook

Zorblax is a fictional calibration unit used only in the Alpha-9 experiment.
The Alpha-9 experiment measures thermal drift in the Orbital Loom device.
A Zorblax reading above 40 indicates the Orbital Loom needs recalibration.
Calibration is performed by the Qarn tool every 500 cycles.
Safety: never exceed a Zorblax reading of 65 during live operation.